Dear Sir:

Microsoft's behavior must be strongly regulated because of its past monopoly history and lack of remorse in unlawful practices. We must stop MS from perpetuating its monopoly practice of maximizing its profits by shutting down support for its older products and pushing everyone towards buying newer, supported Microsoft products.

The following is from <http://www.langa.com/newsletters/2001/2001-11-15.htm>

[
Next month (December 2001) Microsoft will cease to provide support for MS DOS, Windows 3.xx, and Windows NT 3.5x; and support will become limited for Win95, Win95 OSR1 and Win95 OSR2.

Seven months from now, in June 2002, Microsoft will cease to provide full support for Win98, Win98SE, and WinNT4.x. That's right: Starting next month and ending next June, the overwhelming majority of current Windows users will find themselves operating OS versions that the vendor-- Microsoft--- either doesn't support, or only partially supports!

]

Note that Win98SE is currently the largest segment among Operating System users.

Sincerely Yours,

S.I. and Matilda Chou
